

The Department of Geography at Oklahoma State University seeks a broadly trained HUMAN-ENVIRONMENT GEOGRAPHER specializing in geographies of food and agriculture for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning in August 2023. The ideal candidate will have related expertise in topics such as food security, famine, climate risk, vulnerability, resilience, hazards, GIS, remote sensing, and/or participatory or citizen science. We are open to diverse methods (quantitative, qualitative, and mixed). The successful candidate is expected to develop and maintain an externally funded research program that supports OSU's land grant mission. The Department places a high value on transdisciplinary and community engaged scholarship. Opportunities exist for collaborative research within the Department and through campus initiatives focused on OneHealth, sustainable energy, agricultural innovation, and unmanned aerial systems, among others.

We seek candidates who can create inclusive learning environments for our increasingly diverse student population. A commitment to active pedagogy, student success, and excellence in teaching from the lower-division to graduate level is essential. Possible courses may include introductory geography courses, Food Geographies, International Resource Management, Citizen Science, as well as a seminar related to the candidate's area of specialization. The willingness and ability to teach both in-person and online is preferred. The position also entails service at the department, college, and university level. A PhD in Geography or a related field is expected at the time of appointment.

OSU Geography is a doctoral-granting department housed in the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) with 15 full-time faculty members, about 70 undergraduate majors, and 25 graduate students. The Department offers undergraduate degrees in Geography, Geospatial Information Science, and Global Studies as well as graduate degrees (MS and PhD) in Geography. Oklahoma State University is a comprehensive, land-grant, Carnegie Tier 1 research institution with more than 24,000 students from all 50 states and more than 120 countries. Since 2010, OSU leads the nation among public land-grant colleges and universities for Native Americans who have completed degrees. It has also been nationally recognized for its commitment to diversity and service to veterans. OSU's attractive main campus is in Stillwater, a one-hour drive from either Oklahoma City or Tulsa. Stillwater has an historic downtown, regional airport with daily flights to/from Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW), highly rated public schools, and the newly opened McKnight Center for the Performing Arts.

OSU places a strong emphasis on diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI). We especially value a welcoming and inclusive environment that fosters a sense of belonging. For the complete statement about DEI see <https://go.okstate.edu/about-osu/leadership/president/diversity-inclusion-task-force/index.html>. As an equal opportunity employer, OSU complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. The university is committed to equal opportunity and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with respect to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. For more information, visit <https://eeo.okstate.edu>.

Applicants must submit the following materials: (1) letter of application describing their research and teaching experience and interest in the position, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) statement of research agenda, (4) statement of teaching philosophy, (5) statement on DEI, and (6) contact information for three professional references. Candidates are encouraged to include evidence of teaching effectiveness such as sample syllabi and/or course evaluations.

Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2022, however applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The position is contingent upon available funding. Further information is available on the department website: <http://www.geog.okstate.edu>. Any questions may be directed to Dr. Reuel Hanks, Search Committee Chair, reuel.hanks@okstate.edu.

Apply: <http://apply.interfolio.com/114226>